

EURASIAN MINISTRIES

College year ends

I've had a very uplifting week teaching at the Eurasian Missionary College in Kazan, Tatarstan, celebrating the end of the College-based training year with the students, and reviewing the year with the College Board. For details and photos please see my one-page newsletter at the link below.

College Property remains available, but pressure on Principal to begin purchase arrangements

I get back to the UK late Tuesday evening (31 May), and will process donations for the College property project (link below). If you or your church are still considering whether you can help with it, please be assured that it remains the best plan by far to establish the College's long-term ministry. The seller is putting pressure on Feodor to begin making purchase arrangements. We will not be rushed by strong-arm tactics, but I am keen to move on the purchase of the property as soon as we have an indication that there will be sufficient funds. Do let me know if you can pledge funds, even if they will not become available until later in the year.

Thanks for prayers

I want to thank all Eurasian Ministries partners for the many expressions of support and promises to pray for my personal circumstances. I will send the June Eurasian News and information for prayer and support of the many evangelistic camps and missionary training activities that will occur over the summer in Tatarstan. From July Graham Herbert will pick-up Director's communications. Please continue to uphold us all in prayer.
